

SOMERSET COUNTY PLANS TO OPERATE ITS OWN COAL MINE

Workable Deposit Beneath the Poor Farm is to be Developed.

EXPECT TO SLASH EXPENSES

Test Hole is Sunk and Results Show a Vein of Good Coal Beneath Soil; Report for Year Indicates that Inmate Hospital is Good Investment.

Special to The Courier. SOMERSET, Feb. 23.—A coal mine is to be added to the varied industries of the Somerset County Home and House of Employment, according to the annual report of four directors.

The mine will be located on the county farm, which is underlain by several fine seams. Recently the directors had a test hole drilled and find the coal of excellent quality. The opening of a county mine, it is believed, will considerably reduce the running expenses of the county institutions. It is probable that coal from the new mine will be used at the court house and jail heating plants, where great quantities are burned every year, and form quite an item in the county's expenses.

During the year the east wing of the inmate hospital was completed by the County Commissioners, the directors report sets forth, and in the month of October the male patients were transferred from the old hospital. For several years the State hospital has been closed to the inmates of the surrounding counties by anticipating conditions. Somerset county is now well-equipped to take care of its own inmates and in addition has been able to assist Cambria, Fayette and Westmoreland counties, which those counties are erecting or planning to erect hospitals.

An entire new water system has been installed, the report sets forth, which furnishes an adequate supply for all purposes including fire protection. Notwithstanding this summer of 1912 was exceedingly wet and it was difficult to perform farm work, especially during harvest, an immense amount of produce was raised on the farm.

A HARD WINTER

For People in Poor Health. Winter with its sudden changes is particularly trying for old people or those who suffer from a weakened, rundown condition, chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, but if such persons would only apply common sense methods in the treatment of their condition, much discomfort and suffering might be avoided.

The most effective remedy to do in to build up strength, enrich the blood, increase vital resistance and to accomplish this nothing equals Vinol, our cod liver and iron tonic without oil.

Mrs. H. Hartmann of Albany, N. Y., says: "I was in a run-down condition for about five years until this spring, when I learned that a great tonic and strengthener Vinol is. It is certainly the best I have ever used and it has done wonders for me."

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds should try a bottle of Vinol. We will take your money if it does not help you. Graham & Company, Drugists, Connelville, Pa. Vinol is sold in West Side by Fred H. Harnsberger, Druggist.

DIES AT IRWIN

Former Connelville Woman Had Been Ill a Month.

Mrs. James Whalen, a former Connelville resident, died last night at her home at Irwin following a month's illness. The cause was a complication from the Catholic church at Irwin Monday morning. Requiem high mass will be celebrated, interment in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mrs. Whalen before her marriage was Miss Anna Kelly. In addition to her husband and three children, John, Joseph and Camilla, she is survived by her aged mother, Mrs. Mary Kelly, Harry Berlin, and Mrs. Mary Jordan, all of Connelville; and two brothers, George of Ohio and John of Irwin.

A Fallacy Depicted. Many of the delicious effects ascribed to coffee, chiefly by those who have "an axe to grind," have been proved to be incorrect by experiments carried out by Professor L. L. Hollingsworth of Columbia University, New York City. His recent experiments go to prove that high grade coffee is not injurious. This is welcome news to those who enjoy good coffee. Splendid results have been obtained with "BREAKFAST CHIEF" coffee. High grade coffee produces a delicious, creamy beverage, refreshing and free from impurities which alone are responsible for unfavorable effects. You can drink "BREAKFAST CHIEF" coffee with assurance and healthy enjoyment. Be sure to order some of this coffee today.—Adv.

Carl of Thanks. We desire to express our sincere thanks to all who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and death of our daughter and sister Edna and to express our appreciation of the many beautiful floral pieces furnished. Mrs. Kathryn Porter and family.—Adv.

Batman's Body Sent Away. The body of G. H. Batman was shipped to the family home at Sand Patch yesterday afternoon by funeral director J. E. Sims. The interment will be made at Muncie, Somerset county, tomorrow morning.

RETIRING OFFICIAL GETS A LOVING CUP FROM THE EMPLOYEES.

A. C. Overholt.

Upon his retirement as Resident Manager of the Scott's Emulsion plant of the United States Case Iron Pipe & Foundry Company, A. C. Overholt was yesterday presented with a loving cup. W. R. Hill, who also retires, was given a gold watch.

FOR DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Saves Your Hair! Danderine Destroys Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair at Once—Grows Hair, We Promise.

If you care for heavy hair, that shines with beauty and is radiant with life; has an invulnerable softness and is fluffy and lustrous; you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive agent eats the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots furnish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, don't hesitate, but get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff, no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now! A 25 cent bottle will truly amaze you.—Advertisement.

SOCIETY.

Anniversary Banquet.

The celebration of the fifth anniversary of the O. C. Society of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School last evening at the West Penn. room was a grand success. The affair was the largest and most enjoyable social event ever given by the school. The program was well planned and the entertainment was of the highest order. The room was beautifully decorated with ferns and vases of roses, presenting a very neat and attractive appearance. The program was as follows: Piano solo, "The Willow Pattern Piece," Mrs. J. French Kerr. The program was delightfully rendered. Dainty refreshments were served. The O. C. Society is composed of twenty-five women who are engaged in charitable work, for which the proceeds derived from the entertainment will be used. The ladies meet semi-monthly to sew for the poor.

Benefit Entertainment.

Despite the inclement weather the benefit entertainment given last evening at the Y. M. C. A. by the Dorcas Society was attended by about 100 persons. Mrs. William Robbins is President of the Society. The program was as follows: Piano solo, "The Willow Pattern Piece," Mrs. J. French Kerr. The program was delightfully rendered. Dainty refreshments were served. The Dorcas Society is composed of twenty-five women who are engaged in charitable work, for which the proceeds derived from the entertainment will be used. The ladies meet semi-monthly to sew for the poor.

Entertainment Musicals.

Miss Martha Munson entertained the Thursday Musicals last evening at her home on East Gibson avenue. Four tables were called into play. The club prizes were won by Mrs. J. T. Johnston and Miss Kathryn Priebe and the guests' prize by Mrs. B. T. Norton. Luncheon followed the musicals. Mrs. T. Johnston will entertain the club Thursday afternoon, March 15, at her home on East Main street.

Evening at Camp.

Five tables were called into play at the regular meeting of the South Side Euchre Club held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Norton.

DISORDERED NERVES

sometimes start from mental strain or indigestion, but more often from general weakness, and lead to appalling conditions unless checked.

Treat the cause, not the effect.

SCOTT'S EMULSION overcomes nervousness in a wonderful, permanent way by making life-sustaining blood corpuscles; it nourishes the nerve centres and acts as a bracing tonic to build you up.

Scott's Emulsion does not stupefy—it feeds them in Nature's way.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-56

on East Main street, Mrs. W. L. Wright was awarded the prize. Luncheon followed the games. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Norton will entertain the club Thursday evening, March 13, at their home in Carnegie avenue.

Birthday Party. Mrs. John C. Nicholson was hostess at an enjoyable surprise party, Tuesday evening at her home at Snyderstown in honor of her husband's birthday. About 10:30 o'clock the guests assembled in the diningroom where a dainty luncheon was served. Mr. Nicholson received a number of pretty and useful presents. Mr. Hines of Scottsdale was among the out of town guests.

Mrs. Stillwagon's Party. Mrs. Sofia Stillwagon of Snyderstown was pleasantly surprised by a party of 25 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren invaded her home in honor of her birthday. The evening was spent in a delightful manner, games and other social diversions being indulged in. Refreshments were served.

Evening at Camp. Mrs. Frank McFarland of Dunbar, entertained a number of friends at her home last evening. Euchre was the chief diversion. A choice collection was served.

Party at Vanderhill. Mrs. W. A. Cosgrove will entertain at her home at Vanderhill this evening. A number of persons from Connelville will attend.

Sixty Acres Needlework Club Meets. The Sixty Acres Needlework Club was entertained last night by Mrs. P. T. Robinson at her home on Vine street. Twelve members and their guests were present and spent a very enjoyable evening at fancy work. A well appointed luncheon was served. Mrs. L. F. Hayman will entertain the club next Thursday evening at her home on Sycamore street.

Afternoon at Fancy Work. The Silver Thimble Club was pleasantly entertained yesterday by Mrs. W. H. Shawman at her home on Prospect street. The afternoon was spent at fancy work. Mrs. Shawman served the luncheon. Mrs. Robert Myers of Juntura rendered several fine solos. Thimbles were given as favors. The next meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, March 13, at the home of Mrs. Otto Kohler.

Special Meeting. A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. to be held Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, presided by the President, Mrs. Nellie H. Shawman. All members are urged to attend.

MONEY BACK

Says A. A. Clarke if Amies Kidney Pills doesn't banish all kidney troubles.

Did you ever stop to think, dear reader, that the kidneys become clogged and just the way at the liver and that disease is apt to follow?

You take medicine once in a while to unclog the liver. Why not take Amies Kidney Pills to unclog the kidneys—then note results.

The kidneys you know strain the blood and if these strainers are clogged Bright's disease may follow.

If you have backache, sideache, standing pains, high colored urine or any symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble, put your faith in Amies Kidney Pills and you won't be disappointed. Better take a few doses and drive out the impurities, anyway. You'll feel better, for these pills are a splendid tonic. A. A. Clarke guarantees them. 60 cents. Amies Chemical Co., Cory, Pa.—Advertisement.

Entertains in Scottsdale. Miss Elizabeth Williams entertained the J. E. Fancy Work Club last evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Gordon at Scottsdale. Fifteen members of the club were present. The evening was pleasantly spent at fancy work. Luncheon was served. Miss Bessie McGill will entertain the club next Thursday evening at her home on Carnegie avenue.

Pimpily? Well Don't Be People Notice It, Drive Them Off With Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pimples will vanish after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Nothing ever cleansed the blood, the bowels and the liver like Olive Tablets. Olive Tablets are the only successful substitute for cod liver oil—they oil the bowels, there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Olive Tablets do all that calomel does and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown brown face," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Try them. Take one nightly for a week. Then look at yourself in the glass and see how you feel. 10c and 25c per box.

MONUMENTS.

The world has reared many monuments during its many civilizations. Some have commemorated great men and great achievements, while others have been reared by wealth to nothing greater than human vanity. The modern tendency has been to thus honor only national achievements and leading citizens; the mile posts in history and those who helped to set them there.

Canonsburg is 125 years old and is talking of holding a celebration in honor of Colonel John Canan, the founder of the town. Canonsburg is a thriving town, but Canan has no monument there. The foundry has not made the acquaintance of the founder.

Connellsville is not quite so old as Canonsburg, but on top of the Fourth Ward school building stands a wooden image of Zachariah Connell holding in his hand an American flag, which we blush to state is sadly in need of a visit to the laundry.

The man who laid out Mud Island in building lots gave it a name and took a handsome profit for so doing. He was a keen business man. He was content to be a Captain of Finance while the Pioneer and Patriot who shared the pathway hither and yonward against British and savage foe to make it safe for settlers was being a Colonel in War.

The burning of millions of tons of Connellsville coke has burned Zachariah Connell's name into every industrial community on the continent, but the burning of the statue of Colonel William Crawford left nothing behind but a modest memorial stone on the banks of Tyngsboro creek in far Ohio.

Here at his home the man who always held public duty before private affairs, who shared the dangers and the hardships of the British and border wars and who finally gave up his life in defense of the frontier of which Connellsville was then a part, has neither statue nor stone to remind the generations of the sacred duties of citizenship at a time when such reminders seem more necessary than ever before in the nation's life.

In another part of Fayette county there will shortly be ignored the memory of a brave fighter who fell upon this soil while fighting the French and Indian. Americans and Englishmen will join in this tardy but generous recognition of the services of the gallant but unknown soldier.

Under whom Washington fought, and under Washington, Crawford.

That Crawford has no monument in Connellsville, no man minded to erect one of having one, is a reflection upon the patriotism of the people and not upon the character of "the Great Captain" whose fair fame and heroic deeds are fortunately enshrined in history.

CAPITAL AND BRAINS.

Connellsville is negotiating through the Chamber of Commerce with several industries seeking locations, among others a glass works and a pottery. Connellsville is evidently a favorable place for a glass factory. We have a very successful one operating here now. It is reported that we have plenty of excellent potter's clay. The fact ought to make Connellsville a good location for potteries. We have cement rock in the vicinity. There is a great and growing demand for cement while the deposits of cement rock of first-class character are limited. The cement business is a going business and Connellsville cannot go far wrong by getting into it.

Connellsville has other manufacturers which have been more or less successful and some that have been lamentable failures. The failures have not been because of wrong location; the natural resources and transportation facilities of Connellsville make it a favorable point for many lines of manufacture; but the success of most industrial plants depends quite as much upon their management as upon their location. The Connellsville industries that failed were almost without exception mismanaged. Lack of experience has been the most prolific cause of lack of success. The general oversight of industrial operations should be at least practical enough to know when subordinate service is inefficient or incompetent.

Not to be entirely efficient the management should be entirely practical, and in negotiating with prospective new industries this should be one of the first considerations. Capital with out brains is of little use.

That is not the kind of capital Connellsville wants.

ALICE STEWART.

The proposition to grade out Arch street and open it through under the Pennsylvania railroad tracks from Apple street to Peach street is one which should receive the attention of the Council as soon as the city finances will permit. With the occupancy of the new postoffice building and the inevitable extension of business to its vicinity, the opening of this thoroughfare, which has been under consideration for a trifling matter of some forty years, should no longer be delayed.

As an evidence of the sincerity of its policy to avoid grade crossings in the future the Pennsylvania Railroad Company through its proper officials offers to do more than its share of the work of opening up Arch street under its tracks.

The opening of this thoroughfare would afford a route for vehicles which would avoid the dangerous grade crossings altogether. For all traffic coming in from the West side this route would be just as near, and on a grade quite as good as that now commonly used up Main and out Peach street, while for traffic coming from the South side and Fairview avenue it would be very little out of the way, depending upon ultimate destination.

Somerset county will open its own coal mine. Better late than never. Fayette has been operating its own mines for many years.

INCREASE YOUR INCOME BY CAREFUL BUYING.

(Copyright, 1913 by J. T. Fallon)

Your income may be fixed, or it may be more at one time than another. You may have no control over that.

But there's one way for every good housewife to increase it—she can buy well.

That does not mean to buy cheaply. For cheap merchandise is of inferior quality.

Learn from the pages of THE COURIER the right time to buy, the right place to select, and the best quality of goods.

All this information and much more is given in THE COURIER every night. All the values, even if the prices seem small, are of a high order, for only the best merchants advertise in this paper.

Be sure that you get THE COURIER and read it thoroughly night after night, and watch your expense decrease and your income increase.

A peculiarity of the rapidly moving Mexican revolution is that the victors always find an empty treasury.

Each new administration makes a new loan to finance its needs, and the national debt is assuming noble proportions.

Mexico is rich in natural resources, but how long the financial world will consent to absorb its bonds is a matter for speculation.

In the meantime it is hoped that Uncle Sam will not have to collect any of this indebtedness.

The imprisoned miners in the Valley mine have no very flattering prospect of escape from behind that wall of fire which shuts them off from freedom.

Housebreaking permits have been marked down to bargain prices in South Connellsville.

The rumor is current on Capitol Hill in Harrisburg that the Honorable Archibald Washington (now) Powell, present Senator and Auditor-General-elect, Bill Morse statesman and Boss Flinn spokesman, has been handed a Gold Brick in the alleged deal whereby he voted for the confirmation of the State Highway Commissioner in return for which of his bill increasing the number of jobs in the Auditor General's office, Boss Flinn recently testified that he was a dealer in Gold Bricks; if so, his representatives should not object to them as political currency.

The suggestion that stolen automobiles may be safely hidden away in coal mines is made by one whose knowledge of the mines of the Connellsville region would never get him a job as a pit boss.

Professor Wilson swore he wouldn't tell a dashed thing, but some of his Cabinet timber has evidently been tapped. How could it be otherwise in the midst of the sugar season?

The Hobbie Slick is getting ready to limp out. How the women ever got away with it without breaking their necks is a wonder.

A Lebanon county buck, who was rejected for enlistment in the Civil War because of his advanced age, died a few days ago at the ripe old age of 103. He lived long enough to show the boys of the 60's that they were mistaken about him being an old man.

Friedmann is here with his tuberculosis cure, but he warns consumptives that it is not "a cure for death," in other words, the cure under his treatment is confined to patients whose systems are not riddled with the disease. In this event the cure is not so remarkable, since thousands of consumptives have been cured of the disease in its earlier stages without the use of any medicines.

President Taft recommends the budget system to Congress and incidentally to President Wilson.

Fayette City was some chickens last night. If Uniontown isn't careful, Little Richmond will grab her laurel crown as the Sport Center of the revised and enlarged Connellsville county region.

The liquor legislation is being settled by degrees.

The bill prohibiting the mining of stamps, ribs and pillars by machines got through the House at Harrisburg, but then the House is on record as being opposed to machines.

The godfathers who believe the seventh day was made for rest, having failed to secure Sunday baseball, now want to have the ban on Sunday fishing removed. The righteous lawmakers will probably attempt that the fishes are entitled to a day of rest. In the meantime some anxious citizens want to know whether it is a crime to fish on Sunday if one does not catch any fish; and whether the fish are fellow-criminals when they bite.

Hot dog may be explosive, but a real hungry man will take a chance on its worst qualities.

Safety First doesn't always ride in the Caboose.

The rubber hose connection with the gas stove has again demonstrated its capacity for danger and destruction.

Colonel George Waterloo Cutler and the Connellsville News do not approve of the proposed Congressional apportionment. They evidently think it ought to be a Democratic apportionment.

Pennsylvania will get a place in the Wilson Cabinet, but the Honorable A. Mitchell Palmer will remain on guard in the House. The necessities of politics know no grade.

The Parcel Post will be equipped with the Special Delivery attachment, but the Postoffice appropriation bill contained nothing for special auto deliveries.

Some of the new policemen have a good grip on the job, as trifers with the law have discovered.

FRIDAY—Jinks Was Lucky to Get Away.

By C. A. Voight.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN POINT MARION

POINT MARION, Feb. 27.—Miss Evelyn Gans Smith and Edgar J. Moore, two prominent and well-known people were married at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. K. Sadler on Center street. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, the Rev. P. A. Poffenberger of the Christian Church, in the presence of the immediate family and a few friends. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. The happy couple after receiving hearty congratulations left at 8:30 for a trip to the East. Upon their return they will be at home after March 20 in Point Marion.

Mrs. Nicholson and son of Charlestown were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Provance. Mrs. Nicholson thinks Point Marion is the best place, and has decided to move here and start her son in business.

A few of the young people of this place gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Provance, Monday evening to meet Mr. Earl Nicholson of Charlestown. Those present were Archie Hatcher, Mr. Duval, of Pittsburgh; Roy Cooper, Charles Jackson, Miss Mabel Van Zandt, Miss Helen Evans, Miss Jennie House, Miss Katie Provance and Mrs. Mary Nicholson. Music and games were the amusement of the evening.

Mrs. E. W. Berg of this place, is very sick with pneumonia. There are two nurses in charge.

Invitations are now being sent out for a social given in honor of the Union Adult Bible Class of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School by the Local Bearers Adult Bible Class of the First Baptist Sunday School on Monday, March 2.

W. Beckwith of Mannington, W. Va., is here transacting business with the Jeannette Glass Company. He represents a gas company of Mannington.

R. Dole of Pittsburgh, was here representing the Prudential company of that place.

Paul Baker of Fallin Timbers who has been in the hospital at Mountaintop, W. Va., for some time died on Wednesday at 11 o'clock. The funeral services will be held Friday at 1 o'clock.

S. Burkhardt of New Salem, W. Va., is here to commence work at the Jeannette glass works.

The vaudeville show that was in Point Marion Monday and Tuesday evenings was reported very good, but the attendance was poor.

Mrs. C. Bortone of this place received word that her sister of Charlestown was to be operated on that evening. Mrs. Bortone left Wednesday evening for Charlestown.

E. King, who has been employed as a druggist in the Rexall drug store of this place, left Thursday morning with his wife to visit his parents at Pittsburgh.

Dr. Henry Henry Miller of Philadelphia, who is well known here is the guest of U. T. Mapel.

Miss Edith Berg, an operator of the Independent Telephone Company, is off duty on account of her mother's illness.

JUDGE BARHORST DOES HIS DUTY TO RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it.

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Laramie, Ohio, do hereby certify that after treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walling with crutches, and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. This result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will answer any one suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed."—May 21, 1912.

You can secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at A. A. Clarke and he says it not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica. —Advertisement.

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes
Upset Stomachs Feel Fine
in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souling on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate acid, indigestion, food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve you, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be crank about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a bottle for indigestion, heartburn or any other stomach ailment. Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion. —Advertisement.

The Flying Man

direction. His blood being partially cold might signify what?"

"That he possesses some of the characteristics of the reptiles, is of a rather low order of intelligence and more or less of a reptilian nature. For instance, there are few reptiles that possess a natural antipathy for man, and on the other hand neither do they fear him particularly. Unless he approaches them too closely they ignore him, if he does threaten them they either retreat or fight out of the way or prepare to combat him. Unless aroused, they are content to let him pass; if injured they often become exceedingly vindictive and greatly to be feared."

"Therefore, if Clay had not attacked him it is quite probable that he would not have attacked us."

"I so judge from what I saw of him that evening and from my later speculations. However, we must not be too severe on Clay, for his intentions were of the best." The Professor raised his glasses. "In this too Miss Fulton and Mr. Tolliver approving."

Alan glanced in the direction indicated and saw the pair hurrying towards them. Almost upon a run the girl came, and taking the astronomer's hand clasped it warmly. Her cheeks were aglow, her eyes alight, her whole being radiating excitement and enthusiasm. She gave them no time to speak.

"Wasn't it glorious—the way they arose and swept after him? Oh, how I admired them! And most of all Mr. North—his dash and skill completely won me. I hope he wins the prize for I know he is generous enough to divide a part of it with the others. If I were a man I should certainly be an aviator—although of course I would not permit any man whom I was interested in to be one for a moment. I prefer my friends should live in peace rather than die in pieces. And while you folks were simply staring stupidly after them I seemed to float and soar by their side with the wind in my ears and my whole body thrilling. I wish I could make you understand how exciting it was as we leaped and bounded through the air. But of course men cannot understand such sensations, they are too animalistic. And how is your forehead, Professor?" She stopped for lack of breath.

Desmond smiled down into her glowing face. "It is painless. You remember you helped cleanse it that night! Well, all the pain and soreness were banished by the magic of your touch and it was practically healed before it was bandaged." She sunk low with skirt spread, curtseying quaintly, old fashionedly.

"If the younger men were only half as gallant as the gentlemen of the generation that preceded them how happy we girls would be. You shall dine with us for that." She turned upon March. "And now your account of yourself, sir—your explanation for not searching me out."

March looked quickly from one to the other of the returned pair. As Doris appeared to be the highest of spirits, so also did Tolliver, and jealousy stung him to the quick. Why Tolliver's unusually light manner and, as the searcher thought, triumphant smile? What had happened in his absence—what had passed between them? He answered her lamely enough.

"North and I had just returned from his luncheon when he espied the enemy. The rest had not seen him and we concealed our emotions until he had made his start. For a few moments following I, also, was absorbed in their flight and was afraid thought of little else, besides my lack of lungs."

inaction. Anyway I did not know where to look for you and thought I would find you quickest by remaining here. Hope I was not particularly missed." The eyes of the girl danced.

"Did we miss him, Mr. Tolliver?" she challenged, laughing outright at the sight of Alan's face.

"Ahem," returned Alan affectedly. The Professor broke in.

"I am afraid I am to blame for keeping him from you. He had already started away when I seized him and like the Ancient Mariner detained him while I spun my tedious yarn. But I must be returning home. I shall not let you forget the dinner, Miss Fulton." He lifted his hat, bowed and went his way.

"We had better be going also," suggested the girl.

A shout from somewhere in the crowd drew all eyes in its direction, and simultaneously a hundred hands shot upward with index fingers pointing high across the plain. Far away, faintly visible, miles from the direction in which they had disappeared, were the returning specks circling back like a flock of wildfowl, multiplying in numbers, growing larger, more distinct with each moment passed. Three minutes and they were distinguishable as to form, the Flying Man still sweeping along a good half mile in advance, the planes which had fallen behind their fellows now in the lead by reason of the advantage gained in cutting short the broad turn of the pursued as he circled back. Half way back in the column they could distinguish the Blue Dragon gliding in the sunlight and steadily forging its way once more to the front. In the next minute the frenzied clamor of the crowd had lulled to an occasional excited yell as breathlessly the mob strained its eyes upward. In her excitement Doris clutched a hand of each of her companions and clung to it convulsively.

The Flying Man was leading the sky grayhounds directly over them as though he wished all to see and marvel at his powers. Speeding true as an arrow, his great wings moving with the swiftness of a racing locomotive's pistons, he was bending almost directly to the place from which he had arisen before this wild following-leader chanced through the regions of the air began. That he was giving them a test one and all in both speed and endurance that he might hereafter know their powers and limitations and be governed thereby, none who watched the mad race questioned. And a grueling chase he was leading them, a chase where none except the highest skilled, the most iron nerved, the most enduring and the best equipped could have kept even in sight. He was nearly overhead, perhaps a thousand feet above them, flying flat in the air with hands clasped upon his breast and legs stretched straight behind that his body might offer the least resistance to the atmosphere. To their ears the whistle of his wings sounded like the whistle of a flock of wild geese.

Then from close at hand the belch of a mortar arose, jarring the earth, denoting their ears and rending the air with hurtling graps. Like a flash the flying one dodged as the missiles sang about him, and alighting his course sharply seemed but a long streak as he cleaved the sky. A second mortar exploded and a complete revolution in his leap, so did the flying one recover himself and with a scream as shrill as their own go speeding once more mountainward. The next instant the air above was filled with the sound of the pursuing machines and the other mortars dared not fire for fear of moving down their own. The Blue Dragon, now in the very foremost rank, was overhauling its few remaining competitors hand over hand.

Low over the top of the nearest ridge they flew straight into the face of the setting sun. One by one the pursuing craft hovered for an instant above the crest and then settled out of sight behind it, leaving those upon the plain gazing into the empty air where they had vanished. Then from the unseen region beyond the tops came the rattle of revolver shots fired irregularly, and for a minute more the crowd awaited breathlessly for some sign above the crest and then reached its mark, but another scattered volley faintly distinguishable because of distance, told them that the race was still being run. The sun sank behind the towering horizon, a deep shadow fell upon them and silently they turned and dispersed towards their homes.

The two men and the girl followed slowly after, each silent, each deep in thought. "Anyway it was a wonderful sight and I would not have missed it for worlds," she mused at length. "Why do you suppose he made that remarkable turn in the air? Was he hit?" Clay answered her.

WATCH FOR THAT WEAK SPOT

A Cough or Cold Hits it Every Time.

It May Bring on Tuberculosis; Fortify Yourself by Using Bear's Emulsion.

How are we to keep from getting consumption if our lungs are weak? By taking good care of yourself. Never let your system get in a run-down weak, nervous condition. Never let a cough linger on for weeks or days no matter how little it may bother you. Try to get rid of getting a cold and allowing it to attack one spot every time on a little exposure. Get a remedy that will build up that spot, strengthen it and make it as strong as any other part of the body. The tuberculosis germ only attacks the weak places and if we have no weak spots the germ is thrown out of the body again. Bear's Emulsion sold by A. A. Clarke and Graham & Co., Connellsville; Harry McGibbons, Dunbar; Louisa Duggan, Southside. It is recommended to build up the system and lungs so as to fortify us against this germ. And as I have read so many testimonials from different people of Rockingham County I believe this remedy is one of the best for a run-down system and weak lungs. Advertisement.

"Probably barely winged. I shot a deer once that did the same thing—turned a complete summersault and then got up and went on faster than ever. He wasn't hurt much at any rate."

"And your opinion of it?" she asked of Alan.

"About the same." He was angry at Clay again and found it difficult to show it. He had been invited to spend the afternoon with her and Clay had not, yet he had intruded himself with the utmost assurance and had clung closely to her throughout the afternoon—in fact had monopolized her—and what had taken place in the interval when they were alone together only themselves knew. March, considering that this afternoon with her was rightfully his, had found a little consolation in the thought that his rival would eventually excuse himself and depart, and that he would thereby have the last hour of the day alone with her, but Tolliver showed no intention of departing, keeping his place close by her side and chatting easily and confidentially as they walked and ignoring March as much as he dared in his conversation. Angry and resentful, March spoke but little, and Doris, now that the excitement was over, had grown quiet as well.

At the gate she turned and gave them each a small, set hand. "Father has returned, so I do not need to keep you longer this evening," she told them with an impartially distributed smile. "It was considerate of you to give me so much of your time, and I appreciate it. You must call again, both of you—soon. Good night." She released her hands and ran up the steps, turning at the door to wave them a last farewell. They touched their hats and turned away, March lighting a cigar and Tolliver a cigarette, and this time neither condescended to proffer a weed to the other. At the first corner they separated by mutual consent, and with a formal "good night" returned to their respective apartments.

That night was another miserable one for Doris. In her sleep she seemed to be suddenly lifted and borne bodily aloft by a powerful arm. Although the darkness was so intense that she could see nothing, she was aware of what it was that held her. Above her the cold air was rushing, above her great pinions were beating, around her a void of unutterable blackness. Deathly horror and nausea overcame her and she tried to scream, but her voice was paralyzed and no sound issued from her lips. It was too terrible to be endured and she awoke trembling and perspiring from the nightmare. She could sleep no more that night. She turned on the light, and bolstered up by the pillows sat wide awake the long hours through.

CHAPTER IX.

The Story of North.

Some three hours later and by the early moonlight the planes began to straggle back. One by one, in twos and small companies, they arose over the crest again and settled softly upon the ground at the place from whence they had started, until all were accounted for with the exception of North and his big blue flyer. Those of the returned aviators who had stuck the longest in the chase reported that the last they had seen of the missing one was still in pursuit of the fugitive, flying swiftly and steadily beneath the first pale moonlight and apparently still holding his own. As for themselves, they had at last realized the impossibility of overtaking the apparently exhausted creature that night, and as their machines were beginning to suffer from divers complaints as a result of the long, grueling run, they had deemed it advisable to return for repairs while they could, and also that they might hold a council of war as to what they should do next. In regard to North they expressed considerable concern, the fate of Putnam being still fresh in their minds. The dead man had been as skillful as the best of them, as well mounted, and had had the advantage of full daylight in his duel with the incomparable flying man-bird, yet the latter had at all times held him at his mercy. For North, therefore, to follow him alone through the uncertain shimmer of the moonlight with a machine that must be suffering for fuel, oil and adjustment, and especially when it was known that his enemy had owl eyes by dark, was on every hand conceded to be foolhardiness even by these men whose daily business was the risking of their lives; a foolhardiness not consistent with the missing one's every-day level-headed judgment. It was generally conceded that in the excitement of the chase and dazzled by the size of the reward he had forgotten his ordinary good judgment and had been lured on by the flying devil to unequal combat, and it was promptly decided that if he had not returned by morning a scout should be made for him far and wide.

But return in the morning he did, jaded and weary eyed, and more shaking his head in a negative reply as to whether he had had any luck in his machine in the case of a mechanician and went straight to his hotel for breakfast and a nap. At eleven o'clock, however, he arose as fresh as ever and started back for the field. March's office happened to be upon his route, he stopped inside for a moment's chat with his old chum. Alan was delighted to see his safe return and shook his head dolefully.

"Tell me about it," he urged. The aviator laughed carelessly. "Oh, I was compelled to give it up at last and come down on those mountain tops by moonlight. Say, they were not exactly designed for alighting upon by an aeroplane, were they? Bad landing place, bad—shoot things up quite a bit but escaped serious damage. Yes, I had quite a night of it." He suddenly seemed to think of something else, changed the subject and became enthusiastic. "By George, old fellow, that was a smashing pretty girl you had with you yesterday, that is and fully as sweet. That's the reason I am in this high flying business—not for love of it, I assure you, but for the coin of the realm that is to be made out of it. You see I would not be contented unless I could have Clare—that's her name, by the way—stepping along as high as the rest of them and wearing just as good things, and the only way I could think up whereby I could get the price in a short time was by sky-scraping. She set up an awful holler when I told her what I was going to do, but I went at it just the same, because there was no way out of it. And if I can get that million I don't know the first thing I am going to do."

"Nope, that would be the second. First thing would be to buy an ax and chop that Blue Dragon of mine into shivers and then burn the shivers. I love the old girl all right, but she's a devil when she gets going and I'm going to go and she'll lead me to destruction yet if I don't quit her cold first. So I'd take the ax and put temptation behind me with one fell swoop. Then I'd marry Clare in peace and live happily ever afterwards, and if I overestimated my more excitement I'd learn something about flying—we had enough of being up high. But just because I'm engaged to a girl whom I would not trade for all the rest of them put together, that don't prevent me from appreciating some other thoroughbred high stepper when I see her. It is my innate love of the beautiful, sparkling out you know, and besides that I am a normal human male animal. Hope I will meet her again before I leave or get killed." March nodded and turned to the telephone.

"Special 109," he called to the operator. North grew suspicious upon the instant.

"How long have you, March," he expostulated. "I am no butterfly, and if she is yours just say the word and—"

"Keep still, you idiot. She is answering now." He faced the phone again and began speaking, evidently in reply.

"Yes, it is I and I am quite well, as usual. And, by the way, I have a friend here in the office this minute—one Mr. North, an alleged aviator. He returned safely this morning. I imagine he has a story to tell, but he will not unfold it to me. However, I think you might coax it out of him. He is quite sentimental about you, you know."

"Oh!" exclaimed Doris from her end of the wire. "You pup," gritted North from his chair. All undisturbed, March continued maliciously:

"Yes, he is greatly taken. Says you remind him of the girl he is engaged to and wants to tell you about her." "Ah!" breathed the girl in evident relief. "I shall be more than pleased to listen to him. I want to hear about the case from him. You must bring him up."
